Although the factory has been nationalized, it has retained the name of its former owners, the brothers Stjepan and Marko Ancic. Prior to the war the factory produced various equipment for waterworks and also supplied the needs of the Military-Technical Institute at Sarajevo. Since the war it has been working exclusively for the Institute. 2. At present the plant suploys about 300 workers, who work in one shift and put in "voluntary" overtime work during political holidays. Electrical energy is supplied by the thermo-electric station at Sarajevo, which is located near the factory. Raw materials and semi-finished goods used by the factory are supplied by domestic industry. The production of the factory, largely automobile parts, supplies the needs of domestic military industry exclusively. The factory is guarded by the Industrial Militia. Engineer Josip Sulovic is the director. 25X1
